Gen. Bird To Look Over Labor Dispute at Gypsum Corp.

PORT CLINTON — (AP) — Adj Gen. Whittier S. Bird was enroute here today to observe personally a labor dispute at the nearby Gypsum company plant of the U. S. Gypsum corp.

Enroute to Camp Perry to arrange for the state guard's summer maneuvers starting Sunday, Bird was to stop here to confer with Ottawa county officials who asked for assistance in preserving law and order.

The United Mine Workers of America union, district 50, with the aid of CIO sympathizers from nearby cities established a picket line at the plant yesterday.

The plant, employing about 500, is one of the largest in a chain of more than 40 plants owned by the corporation.

Roosevelt and Churchill 'Somewhere at Sea'

The two heads of the greatest democratic nations on earth, President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill are pictured during their historic rendezvous which was held "somewhere in the North Atlantic." A sensational development of the conference was the adoption of an eight-point program of general war aims expressing a determination to stamp out German tyranny.

Russians Report Withdrawal of Troops To Beyond Dnieper River.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI —(AP)— The drive on Leningrad was reported launched in earnest from the north today with powerful Soviet defenses on the Karelian isthmus smashed, the towns of Kirvu and Elisenvaara captured, and the Red army in retreat.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—A fourth major Nazi offensive, apparently aimed at Leningrad simultaneously with the southern smash toward Odessa, was reported today in Soviet war dispatches.

After a three-day lull in which there was only sporadic action, the communique reported that battles had broken out anew on the eastern front and that fierce fighting had raged through the night chiefly in the Kakisalmi, Staraya Russa and Smolensk regions and on the Estonian sector.

There was no further mention of the Ukraine where the communique last night acknowledged the Red army's withdrawal from Kirovograd (Bevo) and Pervomaisk.

The new offensive was pictured as a sequel to three major thrusts in which the Nazis had reached their present positions on a line running north from the Ukraine east of Smolensk to the northern lakes and the Baltic sea, with the Russians holding out in northern Estonia.

Areas mentioned in the communique are parts of the battlefront developed in the Germans'

Washington to Have Details Soon, Report

President, Churchill Believed to Have Sent Message to Stalin, Promising More Aid, Germans Continue To Scoff at 8-Point Plan.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Suggestions have gone forward to Moscow from Washington and London for a tripartite meeting of experts to discuss the question of war and raw materials to Soviet Russia, reliable information in London said tonight. Text of a message sent by the British and American governments to Premier Josef Stalin is expected to be made public tomorrow.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Important additional data on the historic sea meeting between President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected in Washington shortly, a high official source disclosed today.

The spokesman declined to discuss the nature of the data which is expected and professed lack of knowledge as to whether it would be made public.

However, the belief is growing in Washington that the president and British prime minister have sent a special message to Premier Josef Stalin of Soviet Russia.

It is assumed that the message, if sent, was in the nature of encouragement to Russia to continue to resist the German military onslaught, and probably included a promise of increased aid from both Great Britain and the United States.

There is reason to believe that the United States and Great Britain would like to have Stalin endorse the Anglo-American eight point program for a new world era based on peace and happiness after this war is over. Whether the reported Roosevelt-Churchill message to the Soviet dictator actually expressed the hope for such endorsement could not be ascertained.

Meanwhile, the big question in political and diplomatic quarters in Washington today is:

What did President Roosevelt promise Prime Minister Churchill in return for the renunciation of British imperialism that was implied in the joint declaration of Anglo-American world policy?

Diplomatic observers doubted that Churchill, a life long imperialist, agreed to renounce in advance all territorial or economic advantages the British empire might gain from a victory in this war unless he received something very promising from President Roosevelt.

The two questions foremost in the minds of political and diplomatic observers were:

1—Did the president promise Churchill that this country would enter the war if that step should be found necessary to save Great Britain;

2—Did the president commit the United States to participation in another League of Nations after this war is over?

Official sources profess that they do not know what, if anything, the president may have promised Churchill. Privately, most of them doubt that the president made any definite commitment concerning this country's possible entry into the war.

However, the diplomatic observers point out that Churchill did most, if not all, of the "giving" in the joint declaration of policy. He agreed to renunciation of any aggrandizement either in the territorial or economic field—a pledge

DEFENSE BOARD RULES ON O-B

Recommends Resumption of Production at Barberton; 12 Fined, 5 Sentenced.

The defense mediation board in Washington recommended today that production be resumed on needed defense equipment at the Ohio Brass company's Barberton plant and that the Mansfield union employes continue production pending further negotiations.

The Barberton plant has been idle for 11 weeks during a dispute over terms of a new agreement with the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO. The Mansfield dispute is over the discharge of a foundry worker, which brought a one-day work "holiday" July 16.

The Mansfield company recently received a $340,000 government order for shell fuse primers. The Barberton plant has orders for transformers, generators and other equipment for the Bonneville dam, the Buick aircraft engine plant and other defense industries.

Roosevelt Scheduled to Land In Maine Saturday

President Believed to Be on Yacht Again; Parley at Sea Held on Augusta, Prince of Wales.

(By United Press)

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass.—President Roosevelt notified the White House secretariat by radio today that he will return shortly to the United States and indications were that the debarkation point would be in the vicinity of Rockland, Me.

William D. Hassett, acting White House secretary, informed newsmen attached to the presidential party that he would have a statement for newspapers at 7 p. m. EST. The statement, it was indicated, however, probably will be little more than an announcement of the president's arrival plans.

The White House secretariat maintained the same silence on the debarkation points which has been continued during the president's historic Atlantic meeting with Winston Churchill.

But it appeared most probably that the president would come ashore sometime Saturday forenoon.

Apparently again aboard his yacht, Potomac, after the Churchill conferences, Mr. Roosevelt was cruising leisurely today somewhere off the coast of Maine.

Because of a request from the state department and Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, reporters attached to the presidential party

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Legislation authorizing President Roosevelt to retain all units of the present 1,500,000-man army in service 18 months beyond their normal service awaited his signature today.

The senate completed congressional action on the bill yesterday by accepting a house version, 37 to 19. Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Under its terms, the army may call up any number of selectees for training. Selectee enrollment now is limited to 900,000 at any one time.

RAIN BOON TO COUNTY CROPS

Thundershowers Today Bring Week's Rainfall To Three Inches; More Rain Due.

Heavy thundershowers which hit Mansfield shortly after dawn today brought 1.22 inches of rain to end the late summer dry spell and halt a threatened rise in temperature.

Rain fell intermittently for more than two hours, bringing the total since Sunday to three inches. Farmers in all sections of northern Ohio welcomed the heavy rain as beneficial to late crops and their diminishing water supplies.

The early morning downpour flooded streets and left pools of water standing in fields. Although there were sharp flashes of lightning over the city, no damage was reported.

Pastures in Richland county had started to turn brown and rural wells in a number of communities were nearly dry.

More showers were forecast for tonight, but Saturday is expected to be fair and cooler. The temperature climbed rapidly before the showers this morning and the low recorded last night was 61. Average for the past 24 hours was slightly above normal. At noon today the mercury stood at 68.

Cleveland received 1.47 inches of rainfall in a downpour early today. Automobiles were stalled as they plunged into deep water in the streets.

At Youngstown the rain measured 1.03 inches, drenching decorations which were ready for the Ohio American Legion convention scheduled to open there today.

GO TO DETROIT

Mayor, Director Seeking U. S. Funds For Reservoir.

Mayor William J. Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton left today at 6 a. m. for Detroit to confer with the Public Works Administration officials in an effort to get financial assistance for the construction of an auxiliary reservoir to meet Mansfield's future water needs.

Locke said yesterday that he would carry plans for the new water reservoir drawn up by City Engineer W. C. Statler and would present them to George W. Cordick, regional WPA director.

Earlier this week, Locke cited the need for a new source of water supply and an addition to the 6,000,000 gallon reservoir located in Woodland.

Statler estimated that approximately $175,000 would be needed to build the addition and to obtain a new water supply. When the present reservoir was built, provisions were made for expanding it to 12,000,000 gallons. Any new reservoir would probably be located next to the present one in Woodland.

DEFIANCE: Come and Get Our Arms, Nazis Challenge

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—"If you want to disarm us, come on over here and take our guns away—if you dare!"

This was the challenge hurled by the Wilhelmstrasse at President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill today as the German press screamed defiance to the so-called Anglo-American "propaganda bluff."

As expected, the German government seized upon the eighth and last point of the Roosevelt-Churchill eight-point program, which calls for disarmament of alleged aggressors. Wilhelmstrasse spokesmen termed the program a "complete flop"—using just that American colloquialism—and added:

"It is a colossal blunder.

"If you, Roosevelt, or you, Churchill, want to disarm us, come over here and do it, if you dare.

"Take our weapons away from us—if you can.

"We welcome the frankness of the American president and the English prime minister.

"Now all the peoples of Europe will be able to see what is awaiting them at the hands of our foe—the same condensed 14 points that have been stinking up the European atmosphere since 1919."

"Politically," the spokesman continued, "the eight-point program is already a dead duck, as American and British diplomatic swan-songs reveal.

"The British are frantically stressing the fact that the high seas conference was called on the initiative of President Roosevelt.

Takes No Action On Registration Of Rural Voters

Richland county will have no rural or village registration of voters for several weeks at least as a result of the failure of the county election board to invoke the new state law providing for total registration at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

While extension of the registration was considered by the board, no action was taken. The board also deferred action on its proposal to reduce the size of precincts in Madison township to facilitate the handling of election supplies and tabulation of votes after heavy voting. It is expected that both topics will be considered again at a board meeting in September.

The law giving counties the right to require county-wide registration became effective yesterday. Only Mansfield voters are required to register now.

The board yesterday approved primary election costs totaling $3,825 and ruled out only one disputed ballot held over from Tuesday's primary count. There was no change in the primary results.

Recommends Rehabilitation of Rejected Draft Registrants

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Declaring that America's reservoir of military manpower "is disappointing," Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt today recommended six changes in national selective service regulations to force an estimated 6,000,000 draft registrants being rejected by the army for physical defects, to undergo "voluntary" rehabilitation treatment.

McNutt also disclosed that steps already are being taken to ask congress for funds to provide medical treatment for those rejected so that they ultimately can be inducted into the army. It is estimated that millions of dollars will be required.

National draft officials indicate that they would favor such a proposal, explaining that they have been trying to aid in physical rehabilitation in a limited way. It is pointed out that Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, is on record with a statement that the public is going to "get sick and tired" of registrants who escape military service because of correctable physical defects.

Authorities at draft headquarters say that the changes proposed by McNutt could be made without new legislation by merely writing new regulations under powers they already possess. Further, it is indicated the changes probably would be made if enough money is made available for administration of such a rehabilitation program.

City and County Relief Bill Cut 50 Per Cent In 7 Months

Mansfield and Richland county relief costs have dropped to almost half of what they were at the beginning of the year, J. V. Finney, relief director, announced today.

Finney's report for the month of July shows that only $6,170.85 was spent, or $976.19 less than the combined relief areas spent in June. Relief expenditures for January were $12,160.03.

Although an increase of $80 had been noted in the June report because of exceptionally high expenses for the care of medical indigents, July's report showed a decrease which was $895.42 less than that of May.

The relief decrease was due to a $500 cut in medical services for indigents in the county and $136 in city indigent cases, a slash of approximately $200 in administrative and non-administrative encumbrances, and the dropping of ten persons from the WPA sewing project at a saving of more than $150.

Medical services for indigents in the county dropped from $1,205.35 in June to $702.95 in July. City expenditures for the same item dropped from $675.15 to $538.94.

Total relief for the county amounted to 1,380, excluding medical services while those for the city were 2,067.44. Administrative and non-administrative expenses totalled $1,427 as compared to $1,649 in June.

SPEED: Beaverbrook Appeals For 'More Help and Quickly'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Lord Beaverbrook, British supply minister, today exerted his forceful personality on American officials in an effort to obtain a speedy and full response to his request for "more of everything."

Beaverbrook, Canadian-born publisher, flew here from New Brunswick in a bomber after participating in the historic Roosevelt-Churchill conference at sea to make a personal appeal for a greater American war-aid effort during the critical months ahead.

One of the top men he planned to confer with was William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, a key agency in the American supply system.

"If you expect us to do as well as people on this side wish us God speed to do," Beaverbrook told a press conference at the British embassy, "then send us as much as you can as quickly as you can.

"We are grateful for what we have received, but we need more. We are engaged in a terrible conflict; we are fighting an awful enemy."

He told the reporters that the British have "tank brigades but that the British Empire never before has made while engaged in a major war.

Washington Hears Additional Details on FDR-Churchill Meeting Are Due Soon.

Churchill also promised that Britain would cooperate with this country in providing a more equitable distribution of raw materials to the little nations of the world—a sacrifice the British hitherto have been most reluctant to make. He further agreed to the broad principles of President Roosevelt's idea for social justice for the working man everywhere.

In addition, he pledged Great Britain to respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they wish to live—a most important declaration if viewed in the light of India's desire for self government.

Diplomatic observers find it difficult to believe that Churchill, of all men, would have committed the British government to these drastic concesisons in Britain's traditional imperial policy unless he had something well worth while to show for it.

Apart from the promise of continued aid under the lease-lend act, the only commitment President Roosevelt made in the joint statement was the implied one that the United States will assist in helping to maintain an orderly world after the present struggle is over.

The joint declaration spoke of the "final destruction of Nazi tyranny," but it contained no promise that this country would go to war to bring about such destruction.

While it is recognized that the president could not, without the consent of congress, publicly commit the country to go to war to save Great Britain and defeat the Nazis, diplomatic observers are wondering what, if any, personal assurances the chief executive may have given Churchill concerning the government's determination to prevent a Nazi victory, and its willingness to assume the leadership in a new association of nations after the conflict is over.

Britain Starts Heavy Propaganda Barrage

LONDON—(AP)—Britain launched a mighty propaganda campaign today to tell Europe's millions of the historic meeting between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and their joint declaration of principles for establishing a lasting peace "after the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny."

The pledge that the two great English-speaking nations were not seeking territorial gains and the declaration they desired "no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely-expressed wishes of the peoples concerned" were considered prime propaganda points here.

To spread word across Europe, Minister of Information Brendan Bracken prepared a campaign to be carried on by radio broadcasts, pamphlets dropped from British and Russian planes, and underground channels.

The first gun in the campaign was fired by the British Broadcasting corporation, which broadcast the Roosevelt-Churchill announcement 80 times in 40 languages within 12 hours.

By Sunday afternoon the BBC expected to have made 300 broadcasts of the text or summaries of the statement.

In general, British reaction seemed to be that the declaration was as important because of what was left unsaid as because of what was said.

It was taken for granted Roosevelt and Churchill discussed many things concerning British-American collaboration which did not appear in their statement and that the Axis powers would be kept guessing.

Commentators said the declaration implied recognition by Britain that the United States would sit at the peace table, whether she fought or not.

Radio Operator J. J. McDonald, Longeuil, Que.

Officer Watson was the only man taken out of the plane alive, and he died in a hospital during the night.

The 22 were killed in a takeoff accident, the second such accident to befall the ferry command within a week. Seven American officers died in the other crash, which occurred Sunday, making a total of 19 Americans to die in this phase of the war effort.

The Sunday crash took a total toll of 22 lives also. It occurred just a few minutes before British Minister of Supply Lord Beaverbrook took off in another craft to fly to the sea rendezvous between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The fliers killed were ferry pilots who fly new planes to England from the United States and Canada. They met their deaths as they were being taken back to the United States in a group so that they could fly more new planes back to Europe.

The plane was clear of the field on its takeoff, but suddenly lost altitude. At the edge of the field it ploughed into a raised road, skittered through a fence and burst into flames.

Wreckage was scattered over a considerable area and airmen and soldiers who ran to the scene with fire-fighting apparatus were held off by intense heat and smoke.

Capt. J. C. Mackey Led 'Charmed Life'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The luck that rode so long with Capt. Joseph C. Mackey finally gave out.

The flier with the "charmed life" who has been ferrying bombers to Britain for the last year was killed as he took off from a British airport, his wife was informed at Montreal last night. He died in the same crash that killed the Rt Hon. Arthur Blaine Purvis, head of the British supply council in North America.

A Columbus boy who became an internationally-known stunt flier, Mackey dodged death by the narrowest of margin many times. He was the only man to escape alive when a bomber he was piloting crashed in Newfoundland last spring, killing Sir Frederick Banting and two others.

There were many other close calls in his flying career.

In 1935, a piece of cowling knocked him unconscious during a flight near Dayton, but he recovered in time to regain control of his ship.

In 1936 at Findlay, O., where he operated an airport for four years, his controls jammed while he was in a barrel roll only 200 feet up. Somehow, he landed safely.

During the Thompson Trophy race at Cleveland in 1939, Mackey was piloting one of Roscoe Turner's ships when a piston blew out. He stayed in the race and finished sixth. Turner was amazed that the man did not crack up.

pute were not made public, a United Press dispatch from Washington said, but it was made known that they called for a back-to-work agreement. The union has been negotiating for a contract with the company for the past two and a half years.

Meanwhile, dispatches from Barberton today said that company officials and foremen were entering the plant today for the first time in three weeks, after the ninth district court of appeals had sentenced five men and fined them and seven others on contempt of court charges, growing out of a violation of an injunction against mass picketing at the plant.

Sheriff Walter O'Neil, called before the court of appeals and ordered to enforce a common pleas court injunction order, appeared at the plant this morning with a dozen deputies.

W. M. Marr, plant manager, and ten foremen entered the plant while union pickets looked on quietly. They created no disturbance.

Heaviest fines on the contempt charges were meted out to T. M. Neil, Cleveland, union organizer. He was given 10 days in jail and fined $250. Harry Ringer and Fred Appel, jr., were fined $100 each and sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Neither Ringer nor Appel is an Ohio Brass employe, company officials have stated, and after the appeals court action today, both men filed appeals from the ruling on the grounds that they were defense workers at the Columbia Chemical company in Barberton. The court was to decide their appeal today.

Fines of $50 each and jail terms of five days were imposed on Wayne Oseland and Orlandox Moore, Ohio Brass employes. Other employes who had been on the picket line and who drew fines of $25 each were Charles Allen, Walter Whitehead, Guy Rambo, Paul Ray, Ralph Garrett, Joseph Myers and George Simon.

were precluded from specifying information on the yacht's position.

Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles and Lend-Lease Generalissimo Harry L. Hopkins, participants in the historic Atlantic conference, came ashore yesterday at Portland, Me., apparently fresh from a last minute conference with the president.

But one question at least about the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences was answered today. They conferred aboard the British battleship Prince of Wales and the American cruiser Augusta. Where the ships were when they conferred was not known.

The White House issued a photograph showing President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill aboard H. M. S. Prince of Wales, taken after church services last Sunday. Another shows them in a group aboard the Augusta taken "after dinner" last Saturday.

There was no hint of where the ships were.

three-way squeeze on Leningrad, jointly with the Finns from the north and by themselves from the west and south. The communique gave no indications of how the battles were developing.

(Authoritative sources in London expressed the opinion that Russian forces in the Ukraine were withdrawing beyond the Dnieper river, the next great defense line beyond the Bug river. Although the Germans claimed to hold control of the west bank of the river for several hundred miles south of Kiev, London had no report that they had crossed.)

Earlier reports said Russian troops abandoning two towns in the mud and dust of the Ukrainian front, battled against a German drive that appeared to threaten not only Odessa and Nikolaev on the Black sea but the vital manufacturing area of Dnepropetrovsk.

While officials denied the German claim that the armies of Marshal Semeon M. Budyenny had been encircled, it was admitted officially that Prevomaisk on the Bug river, 115 miles northwest of Nikolaev, and Bevo, 100 miles northeast of Nikolaev, had been abandoned.

The 14 words of the communique on this aspect of the fighting from the Baltic to the Black sea said nothing about to where the troops were withdrawing from this area.

However, recent communiques have mentioned fighting in the Uman sector and it is possible that the Russians were withdrawing eastward to the Dnieper river or southward down the Bug.

(Germans, claiming to have encircled Odessa and Nikolaev, also said they had reached Krivoi Rog, southeast of Kirovo, indicating that a southward retreat would be impossible.)

To the eastward of this important corner of the Ukraine with its seaports, river communications and farm land lay even more vital territory and some observers considered that Red troops would fall back on the defense of Dnepropetrovsk and the ore-rich Donets basin.

An important part of Russia's heavy industry was centered in this sector east of the Dnieper with the river forming a natural defense line.

Report Polish Fliers Bag 13 Nazi Planes

LONDON —(U.P.)— A Royal Air Force fleet of more than 300 bombers, following a daylight sweep of north France in which Polish squadrons bagged 13 German planes, blasted German industries at Hanover, Magdeburg and Brunswick during the night.

The air ministry said many fires were started and those at Hanover, 60 miles from Berlin, were "specially large."

Last night's British attacks centered on central and northwest Germany and authoritative quarters disclosed that not only were the attacking formations strong but they dropped the heaviest bombs the British have. The raids caused an air alarm in Berlin but the Reich's capital was not a British target.

"The League of Nations is dead and gone. But in the Roosevelt-Churchill program remains its 14 points on which Europe has worn out the soles of its shoes since 1920 trying to make them work."

The spokesman went through the program point by point, giving an argument to each one. With regard to freedom of the seas, he said:

"Who is going to break the British sea monopoly and their hold on trade lanes throughout the world, as well as naval bases, even in the western hemisphere?"

With regard to the assertion that the meeting was held to forestall a German peace offensive, the spokesman said:

"There is no peace offensive for the reich, only military offensives. Destruction of the foe is our only principle. There will be no peace before a complete German victory."

Roosevelt-Churchill Peace Formula

WHATEVER other impressions may be gained by students and analysts of the succinct statement issued yesterday by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill after their momentous conferences on the high seas, it is an inescapable conclusion that these two men, as representatives of their respective nations, are looking forward with calm confidence to successful termination of war and are already beginning to lay the groundwork for what they hope will be permanent world peace.

This epochal meeting, probably destined for top place in the history of the present war, was dramatically timed to the moment at which its effect in all nations of the world would likely be greatest.

It comes at a time when the built-up legend of the invincibility of the Nazi military machine is being doubted, even in conquered nations, and when it is becoming better understood, in the Americas, in Great Britain and by freedom loving people everywhere, that present and potential combined military strength of nations aligned in the battle for human freedom and self-determination in government, is vastly superior to that of the Axis powers.

While the principles enunciated in the Roosevelt-Churchill statement may appear idealistic, in the light of past and present records of human behavior and national action in self interest, it must be admitted that, in a brief way, this document sets up an admirable formula for maintenance of world peace among civilized people.

For those who are uncivilized, or who "threaten aggression outside of their frontiers," disarmament is proposed, "pending establishment of a permanent system of general security."

Each of the eight points in the statement may be considered important, but two of them appear to hold out greatest hope to small nations which have come under the temporary domination of Hitlerism.

In the third point it is said: "They respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live, and they wish to see sovereign rights and self government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them."

This freedom of choice is in accord with practices of Great Britain and the principles of the United States Constitution. It assures to each individual such personal liberty as is granted by the nation of which he is a part but guarantees the right of each nation, small or large, to decide what its form of government shall be—as long as there is no encroachment on the rights of other nations.

The sixth point is also one that will have vital affect on the people of nations which have heretofore been victims of totalitarian aggression: "After the final destruction of Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries . . .", which couples with the second point: "They desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned."

If, by some great feat of magic, peace could be immediately restored and a "new world order" established in accord with plans outlined in the Roosevelt-Churchill statement, an amazing change would be quickly wrought.

But it cannot be done in this way. The war must go on until final victory has been achieved and peace restored.

In bringing this about there is reason to believe that the United States of America cannot avoid playing an increasingly important part.

Blood Tests Before Marriage

WHILE its results may not become immediately noticeable, there is consolation in the thought that Ohio young people now have a warning sign placed before them in advance of marriage—so that, if they care to, they can avoid the later physical and mental torture of marital association with the victim of a venereal disease.

Ohio's new law, requiring blood tests in advance of issuing a marriage license, becomes effective next Monday and this state thus joins with a number of others in attempting to prevent the spread of syphilis to unsuspecting persons, and also to reduce the number of unfortunate children tainted by this dread disease.

Until there are more uniform marriage laws in all states the effectiveness of such restrictive laws in individual states may be questioned, but young men and women are at least given opportunity to learn of this danger instead of stepping into it blindly, as was so often the case in the past.

Youthful eyes may be unaccustomed to looking far into the future, but now that the word "syphilis" is being more freely spoken and printed it would be well for every young person and adult to become informed about this disease and its effects, and to realize that its blighting contamination, unless arrested by treatment, is transmitted to successive generations in various manifestations of physical or mental subnormality.

Extension of Training Period

MORE importance than appears to have been justified was attached by congress to length of extension of selective service—which was finally fixed at 18 months.

While it remains impossible to foresee conditions even a week or a day ahead, the possible military needs of the next six, twelve or eighteen months can be no more than a guess.

Had extension of the training period been placed at six months, or a year, it would have been the situation then confronted that would have determined the need for further extension.

If, as is remotely possible, the next six months brings an end to hostilities by the overthrow of Hitlerism and removal of the threat of Axis aggression in the Americas—then there will be no need for longer service by trainees who prefer a return to civilian life.

But if, as seems more likely, war continues a year, two years, or even longer, there can be no safe alternative to retaining trainees in service and continuing the process of inducting additional registrants as they reach the age of 21.

It is happenings, not desires, that will determine what must be done.

"French Economist Sees Us Deciding War's Length." What he means is that if we go in hard we'll get through quicker. But if the U. S. were free to decide the war's length as it pleased, it would be over tomorrow.

Hitler May Lose Out to Junkers

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

HAVE the German military higher-ups relegated Herr Hitler to a back seat, and started to run things according to their ideas, without much regard for his fuehreristic preferences?

That's the story that's current in Washington. The source of it isn't very clear, though the presumption is that it's a diplomatic leak from somewhere.

It isn't verifiable here, either. Nevertheless, there's a bit of circumstantial evidence in support of it. On analysis it doesn't sound altogether improbable.

Everybody'll remember that, only quite recently, Jap Foreign Minister Matsuoka visited Rome and Berlin to ask Duce Mussolini and Fuehrer Hitler how Nippon could be most helpful to totalitarianism in destroying the democracies, that Adolf told him that one way would be for him to arrange a Jap-Russian pact, that Minister Matsuoka did it, that, almost immediately thereafter, Germany launched a blitzkrieg against the Soviet Union, and that this sequence of events made Minister Matsuoka look like such a sucker that Japan's Premier Konoye kicked him out of the Tokio cabinet.

It wasn't easy to see why Adolf should have plotted deliberately to double-cross his Japanese caller, considering that the latter was friendly to him. The general surmise was that he really wanted the Jap-Russian pact when he suggested it; then suddenly changed his mind and went ahead with his new program entirely regardless of the fix in which he was involving Minister Matsuoka.

The latest story makes better sense than that guess did.

Army Decides.

The latest one's to the effect that Adolf did, indeed, want a Jap-Russian pact and didn't intend, then or thereafter, to attack the Soviets (not so soon, anyway), but that the German army command considered the time ripe for the blitz and turned it loose, telling Adolf to go chase himself.

That's some of the circumstantial evidence previously mentioned. Now for the analysis.

What class traditionally runs the Germany army? Why, the junkers. And the junkers are the Fatherland's military aristocracy. They never were democratic, but neither were they socialistic, like Herr Hitler and his Nazis. They were privileged nabobs. They got along with the kaiser because he was one of 'em. So was President von Hindenburg. The "von" at the front end of his name testifies to his noble rating.

But Adolf was just a measly little workingman—not a "von" or anything, a mere house painter. A marshal? Heck, no. A corporal.

And yet he wormed in somehow, and deflated junkerdom.

Does it stand to reason that the junkers liked it?

He caught 'em, initially, at a time when junkerdom was in an awful state of disorganization. Probably, while he was building himself up, the junkers didn't realize what was happening to 'em. By the time they did realize it, he'd put his stunt across and there wasn't anything they could do about it until some favorable opportunity presented itself. Maybe they thought they sensed such an opportunity in connection with the present situation.

If so, why don't they tie an actual can onto Adolf or liquidate him, as well as chuck him into the background, still as a nominal, though no longer a sure-enough fuehrer?

The likeliest answer is that he continues to have, as yet, quite a rank-and-file following, and the junkers deem it unwise to be prematurely over-obvious.

As additional circumstantial evidence, does Rudolf Hess' flight to Britain signify anything? It's a little too soon to say as to that, but it may turn out to be actual testimony.

The junkers may be as bad as Adolf, but they'd be a change, anyway.

The Joy of Canning

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE BEEN putting up blackberries.

Doesn't sound like a very exciting chore . . . putting up berries . . . particularly at a time like this when such enormous events are shaping. Somehow you feel it's hardly worth your time and energy . . . fussing around with a mess of fruit while the stars are crashing—

And the old restlessness comes back to you . . . that tip-toe feeling you had at seventeen when you were waiting, breathlessly, for the Great Thing to happen. What Great Thing? You didn't know! But you were sure it would be something glorious . . . something much more worth while than canning blackberries!

So you waited—longing, wondering, quivering with excitement. Letting the golden hours, days and weeks drift by until your splendid moment came.

ONLY, SOMEHOW, IT NEVER CAME!

That is—it never came as you thought it would. Sometimes you caught a glimpse of wonder . . . a whiff of unearthly fragrance . . . a snatch of song, fluting its far, sweet call, high among the stars. But the Great Event never arrived . . . the Transforming Magic which was to life you out of the ruts, across the sill of Shangri-La.

So now, today, you and I . . . long past our tip-toe seventeens . . . are putting up blackberries! Which certainly seems like a comedown! But don't be too sure! There's more—much more to "canning time"—than meets the eye.

There's the shine and sparkle of the hot, sweet kitchen . . . with the sunshine falling slantwise through the half shut blinds . . . spreading out in an amber pool across the scrubbed red and white of the oil-clothed floor . . . There's the flickering film of the vine leaves outside those blinds . . . the call of a baby bird and its mother's answer . . . old Pluto's lazy snore, sprawled beside some buried bone.

And, back on the stove, simmering slowly, there's the big pot with its slow, dark goodness . . . and all the spring's young delight and summer's rich wonder caught in its heavy turning.

Bird song and sun glow . . . and the sound of the cowbells coming slowly across the alfalfa . . . and the sharp, spiced tang of the dust, waiting for the rain . . . it's all caught for you, there, in that brief space while you're canning a pail of berries. All the beauty and mystery and ripe treasure of Life, caught for keeps—in one short moment.

ONCE YOU WANTED SUDDEN GLORIES—BREATHLESS REVELATIONS. NOW YOU HAVE — THIS! AND FROM TOUSELED TOP-NOT TO STAINED FINGER TIP YOU'RE SOAKED AND SHINING WITH THE JOY OF IT!

Life—it springs such surprises on you! You think you have it all plotted out—then, suddenly, there's something entirely different—infinitely deeper and more comforting. And your gratitude comes swelling slowly, richly, like the dark goodness that bubbles on the back of the stove.

"Get your money's worth!" my prudent elders once said to me. But I've learned a better slogan than that—"GET YOUR MINUTE'S WORTH!" Don't wait for the earthquaking marvels! Grab the beauty and peace and healing content that lie in each short, common minute.

HEAVEN ISN'T AROUND THE CORNER ON SOME SHINING PEAK.

IT'S HERE—AND NOW—IN A CANNING KETTLE!

Report On a Trip.

The South American republics "are becoming fed up with official good-willers," declared John Erskine, the author, upon his return this week from a cultural mission in Uruguay and Argentina for the state department.

We don't blame them. They have a right to question the sincerity of the United States, solicitous efforts to win their friendship.

Erskine said that when he goes back again it will be "on my own." He expressed the belief that United States businessmen should have more to do with improving relations with South America than the government itself. There is a particular opportunity for publishers to strengthen the cultural tie with our neighbors by selling books there at low prices, he maintained. Erskine's advice is worth heeding.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

As Others See It

Not Standardized.

A Kansas City mother has figured out to the cent how much it has cost to raise her two babies, but the cost of raising babies can't be standardized. They're like a car, there's always some unexpected item of repair or upkeep.—Ohio State Journal.

Watchful Science.

Cattle grazing in sweet clover are found to bleed over-freely from slight abrasions. So nosey science goes ahead and extracts a chemical from clover which delays clotting of human blood and is expected to be invaluable in the treatment of thrombosis.—Detroit News.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On Aug. 15, 1935, Will Rogers and Wiley Post were instantly killed about 15 miles from Point Barrow, Alaska, when Post's rebuilt airplane crashed from a height of about 60 feet while taking off in a fog.

GOP Isolationists Fail In Effort To Assume Leadership of Party

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Real reason for that secret pow-wow of house Republicans, just before the party caucus on the draft extension bill, was a move by a small isolationist clique to sidetrack Representative Joe Martin as their party leader. It died aborning—but the meeting showed how white-hot are political passions over foreign affairs within the Republican party.

Ringmaster of the meeting was Representative Ham Fish of New York, megaphonic foe of Roosevelt's defense program. He had grandiose plans for setting up an "independent leadership" with himself as top man.

Groundwork for the "revolt" had been carefully laid at an earlier secret meeting staged by Fish and a small group of cronies. They included Representative John Vorys of Ohio, Frank Keefe of Wisconsin, Harold Knutson of Minnesota, Frank Crowther of New York, Robert Chiperfield of Illinois, and John Robison of Kentucky.

At this meeting Fish loudly censured Joe Martin for failing to take a more "aggressive stand" against the president's foreign policies. He argued that if the isolationists were to make any headway in the house they would have to form their own "independent leadership."

So it was unanimously decided that Fish, as ranking minority leader of the foreign affairs committee, was the man for the job. But, rather than spring such a bold scheme suddenly on their colleagues, this isolationist group decided first to sound them out.

Ham Fish invited to a secret meeting 60 Republicans who have voted consistently against New Deal defense measures. Unaware that the real purpose was to "feel out" their loyalty to their popular leader, Joe Martin, 53 attended.

Attack Martin.

HOWEVER, they quickly got the drift when Fish, Vorys and Keefe waded into Martin. Among other things, they charged him with permitting New Dealers to "shift the war blame" to the Republican party.

Only congressman who actually mentioned Martin by name was Keefe of Wisconsin, but all three made it bluntly plain that they held him responsible for failing: (1) to oppose actively the aid-democracies program, and (2) to repudiate Wendell Willkie, War Secretary Stimson, Navy Secretary Knox and other GOP supporters of the president.

At the psychological moment, Ham Fish, who acted as chairman, pulled out a resolution outlining a "new statement of foreign policy" for Republicans. It reaffirmed the GOP 1940 campaign pledge against war and denounced "executive acts and provocative statements by President Roosevelt leading toward war."

At this point isolationist August H. Andreson of Minnesota picked up the cudgels for Fish by declaring: "That's right. The whole New Deal stinks, and it's up to us to see that the public doesn't forget it."

Keefe chimed in with: "The Republican party will be swallowed up unless we take an aggressive stand against the war policies of the administration. If we're not getting the right kind of leadership, it's up to us to take our own leadership on the floor."

Busted Plot.

BUT getting a majority of Republicans present to agree was something else again. Instead of steamrolling the boys into an insurrection, the plot boomeranged. In the end Joe Martin was given a rousing vote of confidence by all but Fish and his little group.

Next day Fish got another setback when his resolution for a new Republican statement of foreign policy was presented to the GOP caucus by Crowther of New York. In reply, Representative James Wadsworth of New York, senior statesman of the party, demanded that all personal references to Roosevelt be stricken out of the resolution's text.

"The charge that the president is fomenting war by provocative statements is unfair and untrue," Wadsworth declared. "It would be unfortunate if the Republican party should go on record with such an unfounded declaration against the leader of our country at a critical time like this."

Representative Bertrand Gearhart of California, Leonard Hall of New York and others joined in attacking Fish's resolution. Gearhart stated that the party should not "go out on a limb with dynamic declarations about unforeseen events."

By an overwhelming vote all of the blasts at Roosevelt were eliminated from the Fish resolution.

Note—Martin, who presided at the caucus, maintained silence until someone suggested that the party vote as a bloc to override the president's veto of the pork-padded $320,000,000 highway bill. "We're getting on dangerous ground there," warned Martin. "Remember, we are the economy party. I think the president is right on this and I intend to support this vote."

Merry-Go-Round.

MARTIN will make a transcontinental tour in September and October to confer with state GOP leaders on next year's congressional elections. . . . General Philip Fleming, able wage-hour administrator, leaving a train at Burlington, Ia., his home town, was greeted by excited friends who thought the flags and bunting were for him. He laughingly explained that they were in honor of Vice President Wallace, who was to speak at the opening of a new powder plant. . . . Disturbed by the hostile reaction of U. S. sentiment to Finland's alliance with Hitler, the Finnish government has launched a propaganda drive to woo support. . . . George E. Browne, indicated with Willie Bioff, another AFL leader, on charged of extorting $500,000 from movie concerns, is under terrific attack from within his union, the Mation Picture Machine Operators and Stage Employes. Harland Holmsden of Cleveland, vice president of the union, is slated to succeed him.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Thumbnail interview with William Fields: "Plays with stunts in them often make the most money . . . Take 'Our Town' . . . That was a stunt play . . . It didn't have any scenery . . . Take 'Strange Interlude' . . . It employed double talk . . . The actors spoke their conversational lines, then they said aloud uncomplimentary things that went on in the back of their minds . . . It was a sensation, but it was a stunt . . . O'Neill liked to work with stunts . . . Such as 'The Great God Brown', that drama where all the characters held masks up to their faces . . . When they tried to lower the masks and reveal their true characters, no one believed them . . . Those were great stunts, and they paid great dividends."

Add things-I-don't-love: Artificial boutonnieres in men's lapels. . . . Loud brass sections on phonograph recordings . . . Paper napkins . . . white socks . . . rhubarb pie . . . double features.

BROADCAST: "Ma, don't drop down on your knees to pray. . . . Just sit right there in your rocking chair . . . I'm all right, it was a good fight . . . Don't worry about me, Ma." . . . That was what Red Cochrane bawled into the mike after he whipped Zivic for the welterweight title . . . At that, it was novel . . . Most pugilists seem to use the same script writer . . . You could have gotten ten to one Red was going to yell, "Hello, Ma, I win easy." . . . That's what most of them say . . . Red crossed 'em up.

Only 11 plays left on Broadway. . . . It's ebb tide for the drama these days . . . August, and people out of town, and the weather. . . . But the new ones are already in rehearsal . . . There's going to be a new Noel Coward play, with Clifton Webb in the title role . . . Coward has had uniformly good success with his plays here . . . The one that proved the worst flop was the one I liked best . . . It was "Point Valaine," with the late Osgood Perkins . . . There was an actor for you . . . Broadway has never seemed the same to me since he dropped dead in a Washington, D. C., theater several years ago . . . Now back to those 11 current shows. . . . All but two are comedies or musicals. . . . Only "Watch On the Rhine" and "The Corn Is Green" are serious.

A Farmer's Diary

A Public Nuisance

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ABOUT this time of year, it looks funny to see a big man sneeze and keep on sneezing until his face is red and the tears course down his cheeks. It looks queer to see some of the most dignified men and women wearing strainers in their nostrils, with a ring between—so that they resemble South Sea islanders. It sounds pathetic to hear a baby wheeze and strain for breath, and it frightens all of us to see its face grow blue as it struggles with asthma. But unless you've had the matter forced upon you, few people realize that 90 per cent of all 'hay fever' trouble comes from common ragweed—and so could be avoided.

Two kinds of ragweed grow and thrive over most of North America. One is the giant horseweed that grows beside streams and in marshy places, often to a height of eight feet. The other is ordinary ragweed that covers stubble fields and roadsides, grows from one to three feet high, depending upon the fertility of the soil, and seeds itself prolifically.

Just now the weed is coming into bloom. Soon pollen will fill the wind and everywhere people will suffer. Only in the pine woods of Michigan—on the higher mountains of the east, or in places where ragweed cannot grow, can sufferers find relief. Air-conditioned homes are like little oases—but few hay fever victims can afford them.

Garden clubs have adopted the slogan, "Get Rid of Ragweed." Those gardeners are setting a pace for the rest of us. Farmers find means of ridding their land of Canada thistles and other pests—it takes education and cooperation of every land owner.

The best way to control ragweed is to cut it before it goes to seed. A good old lady of our vicinity declares that if ragweed is cut in the dark of the August moon it will never grow again. It would seem that might be as good a time as any.

Why not declare a Ragweed Riddance week, beginning August 18th and each of us keep the pollen out of the air around our own premises? For my own part, I'll sharpen the scythe and get busy. My wife gets hay fever!

LIBRARY HAS NEW BOOKS IN GUIDE SERIES

State, Territorial Volumes Are Added To John Baxter Black Collection.

The John Baxter Black collection at Mansfield Public Library has been supplemented by state and territorial volumes in the American Guide Series which are now on display.

All the states and territorial possessions are included in this series and the whole set constitutes a kind of encyclopedia of contemporary America, its legends, history, industry, geology, folklore, architecture, eminent men and women, social currents, and significent scenes.

Each book, beautifully illustrated, devotes space to suggested tours of the respective states.

RESTLESS ARE THE SAILS by Evelyn Eaton, author of Quietly My Captain Waits, is a fast-paced historical romance built around the fall of Louisbourg in 1745. Paul de Morpain was a French prisoner of war who escaped in order to carry the news of a planned attack on Louisbourg to New Englanders. Throughout the book Paul experiences many tragic and exciting adventures both on land and sea, not the least of which is his romance with the governor's daughter.

WHAT MAKES SAMMY RUN by B. W. Schulberg is the portrait of a volatile, cruel, grasping little live wire, Sammy Glick, whose ambition to get to the top of the heap is finally realized in Hollywood. He begins as copy boy in a New York newspaper office, and by cheating, double crossing his friends, and behaving like a heel generally, he finally gets what he wants.

SECRET FRONT by Paul Gallico is a story of the adventures of Hiram Holiday, ex-proof reader on a New York newspaper, now a foreign correspondent in Europe. The book opens with Hiram caught in Warsaw by the beginning of the war and follows him as he searches for proof of a strange Nazi secret.

OTHER FICTION: THE PARTNERS by Weld, AFFAIRS OF O'MALLEY by MacHarg, CAPTAIN MESQUITE by Curry

LOW MAN ON A TOTEM POLE is Harry A. Smith's record of a busy life minding other people's business. He was born in Illinois, worked for a time in Denver and finally arrived in New York, where he interviewed celebrities, among his other newspaper duties. The book is largely a collection of these interviews, liberally spiked with humor.

I WAS A NAZI FLIER by Gottfried Leske is the self-portrait of a Nazi flier. It is the diary of a man who bombed London—who helped raze Coventry—who bombarded the retreating British Expeditionary Forces at Dunkerque and swaggered through conquered Paris. It is a document, written in the young flier's own words, and it tells how an average Nazi airman thinks, feels and lives.

THE MAN WHO STAYED IN TEXAS by Nathan and Cohen is the life story of seventy-five-year-old Rabbi Cohen who was born in London, and started his life work distributing food tickets to the London poor. After working in various other parts of the world, he came to America and for fifty-two years has lived in Galveston, Texas. He is widely known and honored for his liberal views and humanitarian principles.

OTHER NON-FICTION: SETTING YOUR TABLE by Sprackling; THE WAY WE WASH OUR CLOTHES by Ahern; FLOURESCENT LIGHT by Dake and De-Ment; INDEPENDENT EGYPT by Youssef; JUST AMONG FRIENDS by Comfort; TECHNOLOGY AND SOCIETY by Rosen; CAREERS ON BUSINESS PAPER by Hall; YOUR CAREER IN BUSINESS by Hoving; I, JOHN by Miller; AUTOMOTIVE OCCUPATIONS by Leyson.

OUTGUESSED ON RELIEF

LANSING, Mich. —(U.P.)— City officials said today that industrial employment had taken so many persons from the relief and WPA rolls that for the first time since the plan started the city would be left with a stock of garden seeds intended for free distribution to needy families.

LOAFERS INCONVENIENCED

THEATERS

Romantic Comedy.

As a slap-happy telephone operator who becomes engaged to three men at the same time, Ginger Rogers has the support of George Murphy, Alan Marshal and Burgess Meredith in her new starring picture, "Tom, Dick and Harry," opening Saturday at the Ohio. She becomes engaged to a wealthy socialite, a garage mechanic and super-salesman and then faces a show-down with the trio. Directed by Garson Kanin, who produced "My Favorite Wife," the picture also has Vicki Lester and Phil Silvers in the cast.

Marxian Funfest.

The Marx brothers invade the Madison theater Saturday with their latest piece of hilarity, "The Big Store." As private detectives hired to protect Tony Martin from a killer they run wild through a department store and turn the place into a shambles. Virginia Grey plays the romantic lead opposite Martin and the cast includes Virginia O'Brien, the dead-pan torch singer and Douglas Dumbrille. The musical highlights include Harpo's harp solos and Chico's piano numbers. "They Dare Not Love," co-starring George Brent and Martha Scott, is the second attraction.

Action Dramas.

Wallace Beery is starred in "The Bad Man," showing at the Ritz with Lionel Barrymore in the supporting cast. Based on the stage play by the same name the picture is supplemented by another action picture, "Saddle Mates," featuring the "3 Mesquiteers." Robert Livingston, Bob Steele and Rufe Davis.

Heidt Hi-Jinks.

"Pot O'Gold," James Stewart's starring vehicle at the Park, features the tunes and hi-jinks of Horace Heidt's band and a cast that includes Paulette Goddard, Charles Winninger and Jed Prouty. Revolving around the fortunes of an impecunious dance band that rehearses on the roof of a down-at-the-heels boarding house the production deals with the methods taken by the band to put some vitimized foods on the map via a snappy radio program. Spectacular dance numbers embellish the production. "Pony Post," starring Johnny Mack Brown is the second attraction.

Radio Patrol.

"The Officer and the Lady," action drama showing at the Majestic, deals with the adventures of a radio patrol officer in the performance of his duty. He strikes a snag when the well-dressed "front" for a ruthless gang appears on the scene as a rival for the affections of Rochelle Hudson, daughter of a retired police officer. Escape of a convict further complicates matters. Bruce Bennett plays the officer and Roger Pryor the gangster. Charles Starrett intercedes for the Indians in "Thunder Over the Prairie," the second picture.

CHAPTER V

"I think," Gay said sensibly, "we can do her a lot more good if we just let her stay and get a job—if she can get one. I've changed my mind about sending her back home. There's no sense in worrying about her friends in New York, because you know Cherry will pick out the fastest moving crowd, no matter where she is. You can't live her life for her, darling. Save your breath, and just keep your fingers crossed. She'll get over sowing her wild oats some of these days."

"I guess you're right," April kicked off her pumps. "But I did hope she really loved Pat Hastings and that she'd marry him and settle down."

Gay said thoughtfully: "Do you know, I don't think there is an ounce of real harm in Cherry? She just likes plenty of action. I think she's too smart to get into a situation she can't handle. I wouldn't worry."

"Oh, I never did think she was bad," April defended her sister. "But she's too darn beautiful and appealing to be away from mother, and on her own. I'm afraid she'll meet the wrong man.

April looked up to see Cherry standing, sleepy eyed and tousle headed in the doorway. Even with a hangover she looked beautiful and innocent as a lamb.

"You couldn't be talking about me, darling," Cherry bent and took April into her arms to give her a tight squeeze.

April kissed her flushed cheek and held her closely.

"Hello, Sissie," she said trying to sound gay. "Welcome to our city! I'm so glad you've come to stay with us."

"Thanks, pal," Cherry released her sister to sit on the floor. She said with a little laugh holding her head: "Wow, my bonnet has bees in it!"

When April did not answer Cherry put her head on her sister's knees and smiled affectionately:

"You're swell April not to bawl me out. I'm a 'tinker. But I am glad to see you. Don't be afraid of my meeting the wrong man, my love. If I do—and he leaves me holding the bag, it'll have so many diamonds in it none of us will have to worry for the rest of our lives. I'm not a sap like you are, my sweet."

Dawn was streaking the sky before April fell asleep, after her session with Cherry. The loneliness of not having Hill beside her, was almost unbearable. Often since their separation she had reached out half asleep to touch him, and sat up in bed stricken with terror when the place where he had lain was empty.

It was like a nightmare, and April wondered if she would ever get over the habit of waking bewildered and lonely yearning so deeply for his strong arms about her, telling her everything was all right as he had done so often when she had a bad dream.

Gay kept the household quiet the next morning, taking Kenny to the kitchen where Hyacinthe dressed him and gave him his breakfast. Cherry left at ten o'clock to see about her job as a model. Except for faint blue circles under her pansy blue eyes, there was no sign of the effects of the cocktail party on her heart shaped little face. She was radiant in a buttercup yellow sheer dress with a large white hat and white accessories. Cherry was born to wear clothes Gay decided, as her tall willowy figure walked gracefully down to the gateway. She didn't doubt the problem child would come home with a job.

It was almost noon when April awakened

"This is terrible," she looked at the clock with amazement, "I've never slept so late before."

"And you probably never will again," Gay smiled, reminding her that the Hillyer-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing' reopened the next morning.

The building needed repairs and redecorating and April had decided to close the school and let the landlord have the work done while she was in Reno. She and Gay had planned an entire new schedule, and a new line of advertising, hoping to make the school into a much larger institution during the summer months.

They were talking over the plans at their noon breakfast when the door bell rang. Hyacinthe went to answer it and came back to tell them excitedly:

"Bless mah soul, it's Mistah Pat Hastings, come all the way in his cah from Virginny."

April got up hurriedly: "Well, bring him in Hyacinthe." She called a welcome. "Hello, Pat! We're in the dinette."

A tall, rangy good looking young man appeared in the doorway, trying hard to muster a cheerful grin. April threw her arms around his neck:

"Bless your heart, Pat! What a nice surprise."

She kissed his brown cheek, and the young attorney picked her up and planted a noisy kiss on her lips.

"There, beautiful, that ought to hold you for awhile! You're gettin' prettier every day, April, I declare you are."

"I'm here too, tall, dark and handsome," Gay reminded him, and he picked her up and kissed her with equal enthusiasm.

"You must have some breakfast," April waved him to a chair. "Hyacinthe, bacon and eggs for Mr. Hastings—and anything else you can find out there to fill a starving attorney."

"Yas mam," Hyacinthe blustered, beaming, "I sho 'nough will take care dat little mattah in two shakes a lamb's whisker."

After Pat had eaten the prodigious lunch Hyacinthe had set before him and answered the many questions asked by Gay and April about all the folks at home in Salem, he asked suddenly:

"Where's Cherry? Is she hiding from me?"

April shook her head: "No, honey. She isn't here. She's gone out to get a job as a model."

Gay excused herself and left the dinette, feeling it was not her place to take part in the session to follow. Pat's strong lean face took on such a look of defeat when the door closed behind Gay that April could have wept for him.

"Job as a model?" his jaw hardened. "Has she still got that bug in her bonnet? I thought I'd talked her out of that."

April reached out and took Pat's hand: "I'm sorry, Pat. I know how much you love her. But you'll have to be patient. She's got to get a few things out of her system before she settles down."

Pat ran his free hand across his chin in a characteristic gesture he had when deeply worried.

"There isn't must use, I guess," he said hopelessly. "The answer is Cherry just doesn't love me enough. I haven't got anything but a law degree and a small salaried job in Roanoke. She won't take a chance on my making good. Cherry isn't satisfied with what I can offer her. Love isn't enough."

April was at a loss for words that would help Pat Hastings through his ordeal. But because of the depth of her own suffering she wanted so much to say the right thing.

"Cherry is a little bitter about love and marriage right now," April sighed then, "because of my divorce. It has sort of made her lose faith. You must give her a little time to get over the shock of seeing me go to Reno. She's young and impressionable."

"I knew she was hard hit when she heard you and Hill had busted up," Pat said, "I couldn't believe it myself. It just didn't make sense."

"It doesn't to me either," April looked away to hide the pain in her eyes. "So you see I know how you feel when you're afraid you'll lose Cherry."

"I can't live without her," Pat sounded very young and desperate.

"Oh, yes you can," April smiled crookedly, "if you have to. But I don't think you will have to live without her always. After she's had a fling at New York she'll be glad to go back to Virginia. I feel sure of it."

"You're just saying that to make me feel better," Pat looked at April closely. "You don't believe she'll marry a poor lawyer at all."

"She will if she loves you enough," April assured him. "And if she doesn't love you enough, she'd only make your lives miserable if she did marry you. It's better to find out now. Believe me, I know, darling."

"I've got to see her and make her understand how I feel about her getting a job modeling," Pat said unhappily. "She'll get mixed up in a wild crowd of show people and men with too much money."

April stopped him with: "Oh, but you mustn't. That's the last thing in the world to do if you don't want to lose Cherry. You know how she hates good advice, and how stubborn she is. You better just keep out of it and let her find things out for herself. If you chase after her, she'll just run the other way. Surprise her with a little indifference. If she thinks you don't care, she'll begin to worry about whether you really do love her."

Pat looked skeptical: "Do you really think that's the best way to handle her?"

"I know it," April assured him seriously. "I think it would be very smart of you to go back home without even letting her know you've been here. If she isn't so sure you'll come chasing after her, she'll lose a little of her conceit. She's much too sure of you now."

"Oh, lordy," Pat protested, "I didn't drive all this way for nothing. I've got to see her."

GEN. JOHNSON: Demands Report of Lease-Lend Outgo

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WATERLOO, Ia. — There is a great temptation, in making one of these exploratory swings, for a columnist to sit down after a one-night stand and, on the basis of a few conversations, write all about what is going on in this or that neck of the woods, what the people are thinking about and what are the prospects for prosperity.

Johnson

It is a little bit different in the case of the present writer and Waterloo Ia., where this is written.

I lived and worked on the edge of this state for a good many years, had a business that depended largely on its custom and I came from the same corn-fed breed that inhabits these parts.

But I don't feel like shooting too quick in interpreting Iowa opinion on this situation.

But I do want to comment on something I know about. Like a half a dozen other smaller cities, Waterloo approaches what I think is an ideal or goal for American social and economic development.

It is an industrial center at the heart of a very rich agricultural district that gives what our people so badly need to weather both the ups and downs of our stormy economic sea—a kind of balance between farming and manufacturing industries.

It offers off-season employment to people of both great groups. It cushions severe slumps in either. It conserves something of our traditional institutions of local self-government in politics and local independence in economics.

People here are, by that much, removed from dependence on distant metropolitan and monopolistic or even international forces over which they have little control and for which they have less responsibility.

In the main, the relatively small industries in Waterloo are becoming a kind of obsession with me. They are little fellows in business because they, in turn, in my judgment, are the last bulwark against centralization of both economic and political power in such great groupings that control of them can more easily be seized by aspiring emperors in both the political and economic field.

Their preservation, which is the preservation of such strong local community centers as Waterloo, should be one of our chief concerns if we are to preserve what we have cherished most in America.

The occasion for my visit here is the 50th anniversary in the life of such an independent industry as the kind I have in mind, the Rath Packing company. It settled here half a century ago in the center of the corn-hog country with the perfectly sound economic idea that bulk products should be processed as close to the point of production as possible.

This is no advertising creed, but devotion to that idea.

While it has built no top-flight world-wide or even nation-wide industrial unit, it has become a very important element of strength for the whole state of Iowa and to Waterloo as the other examples of little business of both manufacturer and distributor in this community.

What is going to happen to these self-contained local communities if there is no check to the headlong rush to centralize the billions of defense orders in great corporate empires and a few metropolitan centers and to the ill-considered applications of priorities in materials, power and transportation, with consequent unemployment and bankruptcy of small concerns because of their inability to get the materials and accessories with which to serve their people?

COST PROBLEM SNAGS MOVE TO SPREAD ORDERS

State Conference Runs Into Troubles as It Tries to Aid 'Little Fellows.'

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS —Efforts of business and government leaders to draw small scale industry into defense production encountered a major stumbling block today in the cost differential between large and small industry.

Smaller plants throughout Ohio have not taken sub-contracts for defense construction because they are unable or unwilling to meet the narrow price margins and high production standards demanded by large industries holding primary defense contracts.

Higher production costs of small plants and their lack of adequate equipment and highly skilled labor were discussed at a meeting in Columbus yesterday.

Army and navy production officers, a representative of the OPM, state officials, manufacturers and business leaders met with State Commerce Director Charles H. Jones to discuss prevention of layoffs in non-defense industries and methods to enlist more plants in defense work. A report of the conference will be given to Governor Bricker before he selects a 15-member state defense council next Wednesday.

Recognition of higher production costs of small plants appeared to be one means to extend subcontracting of defense orders.

Lieut. George Platts, of the naval material division, Cincinnati, recommended that higher costs of local sub-contractirs be included in cost estimates and awarding of primary contracts. The primary contractor must be able to cover the higher cost of parts sub-contracted, Platts said.

"Local autonomy" in drawing up contracts for defense production was urged by Lieut. Platts, to relieve the cost differential between large and small industry.

Dislocation of production and employment in small plants and non-defense production are "acute and will be more acute," according to Herschel C. Atkinson, administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment compensation.

Up and Down the Street

Today the Marines promised to land in the Mansfield naval recruiting office and steal enlistees from W. G. Cox, naval recruiting officer. Postoffice employes have been humming the Marine song through the halls all morning and Cox has been signing every male for the navy who shows promise of being able to sit up and take nourishment, but the Marines have not landed. If they do arrive before this evening, they are liable to find absolutely no one to sign up.

If Mansfield continues its policy of erecting traffic lights, it will soon run out of intersections at which to place them. City Electrician Ernest Adams reported today that 57 traffic lights are in use in the city at present and that two more are on order. Adams said he believes that Mansfield ranks far above the average city in the number of lights being used for traffic regulation.

Earl C. Greene, the Mansfield boy who received national publicity a few years ago when he was assigned to a girls' dormitory at Miami university by mistake, went to Philadelphia yesterday for induction into the army. Greene was scheduled to be inducted from Mansfield, but went back to Philadelphia to leave with a group from there. He has been employed with Westinghouse in the eastern city. Never able to live down the mistaken identity error at collegge, Greene was known as "Mitzi" in college and was placed in nomination by a fraternity as the campus "queen."

A reunion with former teaching associates in the Philippines, whom he has not seen for 20 years, is anticipated by Dr. O. B. Hohendorf, who leaves tomorrow for Huntington, West Va., for the meeting with 12 of his friends. The affair will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Doddrill, who taught in Bacolod, capital of Occidental Negros, at the same time Dr. Hohendorf was teaching there. The latter returned to the states in 1921.

SENATOR BYRD ASKS HOPKINS FOR FIGURES

Wants Actual Disbursements Before Considering New Requests.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — An accounting of lease-lend expenditures to date was demanded today by Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) in anticipation of an administration request—expected by congress next week—for approximately $7,000,000,000 additional to aid the countries' fighting Nazi Germany.

In asking the lease-lend division headed by Harry Hopkins for a report on actual disbursements from the $7,000,000,000 previously made available, Byrd said he believed congress ought to have that information before it considered increasing the amount.

"Congress is perfectly willing to provide any additional money that is needed," the Virginia senator told reporters, "but it hardly seems possible that more than a billion dollars could have been spent thus far of the seven billion that we already have voted."

Byrd recalled that a report made in June showed only approximately $75,000,000 actually spent up to that time, although the president had allocated all of the funds.

Under the lease-lend act the president is required to furnish congress with progress reports "from time to time, but not less frequently than every 90 days." Mr. Roosevelt submitted his first report on June 11, exactly three months after the legislation became law. On a 90-day basis, his second report would not be due until Sept. 9.

There were indications, meanwhile, that the projected fund request might be based in part on possible Russian needs. Some legislators thought that President Roosevelt's conversations with Prime Minister Churchill at sea might have touched on Russian as well as British requirements.

In this connection, Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) said he was reliably informed that the Russians were seeking short range bombers, pursuit planes, anti-aircraft guns, machine tools and gasoline refining equipment.

On the other hand, Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) said he thought there was no necessity of giving credit to the Soviets, but added he had no notion that congress write a restriction of this nature into any bill that it might pass.

Informed legislators said the total amount to be sought would not be fixed definitely until President Roosevelt personally had gone over the estimates prepared by subordinates.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

I NOTICE the glamor girls around Manhattan these evenings seem to have shed their angoras, whether because of the heat or the Hays office scoldings I cannot say; but at any rate it appears that they—and the Hays office—may have been too hasty.

After all, sweaters are pretty things, they take the chill off a girl's shoulders in an air- conditioned bistro, they are inclined to make a lass look young and Judy Garlandish, or even young and Lana Turnerish, if she has the proper build. And there are worse things than sweaters, as the censors are learning.

Only the other day an executive of the Hays office was examining a batch of photographs of Gene Tierney in "Sundown," in which she plays the role of an exotic half-caste princess. The executive was mopping his brow over the scantiness of her garb, when a colleague peered over his shoulder and emitted a long, slow whistle. "My, my," said the colleague. "Looks like we should have let them keep their sweaters!"

Ever since this department stated its observation that orchids weren't asserting themselves around the Broadway area of late, a number of floral incidents have been called to our attention. Just the other night at "Panama Hattie," a huge box, packed in extravagant wrappings, arrived for a nearby florist for Rence Russell, who does a specialty dance in the show.

The size and elegance of the box attracted a crowd of chorines about Miss Russell as she breathlessly cut the ribbons.

She went through layers and layers of frothy tissue paper. And finally she got down to her gift:

Two gorgeous pictures of two gorgeous orchids, and in color, too!

Salvador Dali is en route to California, if he is not already there, and it seems to me the hostesses out there ought to be warned: He is going not for the climate—because Dali hates fresh air—but for the scenery, and the point is not what the scenery will do for him, but what he will do to the scenery. The surrealist is a great one for rearranging scenery to suit himself.

When he visited in Hampton Manor, Virginia, a few months ago he had the pianos about the house suspended from the ceilings, decorated the house in surrealist vein, and trimmed up dressmaker dummies as "sleeping beauties," which he left lying about all over the place to startle people.

During the long, cold early Spring evenings he would have a cow brought into the drawing room to sit and ruminate while he had his after-dinner coffee, on the theory that the natural cow-like expression on the cow's face relaxed him and helped him digest his food.

Federal Board Studies Cases Of 2 Objectors

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The draft cases of two young men who claim to be conscientious objectors were studied today by federal authorities.

Roger Marion Hostettler, 23, of Urbana, was placed in confinement at Fort Hayes after he refused to wear an army uniform. He was inducted as a draftee into the army last Friday.

His case is under investigation by the fifth corps area judge advocate's office. Hostettler claims to be a member of the Mennonite church but his local draft board said he joined the church after he received his draft questionnaire.

U. S. Commissioner Robert W. Newlon will hold a hearing Monday for Ralph Dunkle, Circleville, charged with failure to report to his draft board for induction. Dunkle contends he is a conscientious objector and should be classified as such.

DELVES INTO 4-YEAR MYSTERY OF MISSING WESLEYAN CO-ED

(By Associated Press)

STEUBENVILLE—Sheriff Robert D. Bates today delved into one of Ohio's most baffling mysteries —the four-year-old disappearance of pretty Ruth Baumgardner—with the assertion that he believes the former Ohio Wesleyan co-ed has been here this summer.

The Lakewood girl, 22 at the time she vanished, slipped away from her college dormitory May 4, 1937, without leaving a trace.

The Jefferson county sheriff based his investigation on information received from underworld circles and a feeling that he himself has seen the girl.

Early today he broadcast a request for the pickup of an automobile carrying four persons, one of them reported to be the missing co-ed.

"I feel certain I have seen her in this vicinity," he said. "I just can't place where it was."

Two persons examining photographs of Miss Baumgardner reported seeing her in Steubenville within the last six months, the sheriff reported.

Bates declared he would ask the aid of the state highway patrol, which he declared had been quietly working on the case. It also was learned that three Cleveland detectives resumed an investigation recently.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baumgardner, have long refused to discuss the case.

"We're trying not to think about that," her father once said when asked if he believed Ruth to be alive.

The family received hundreds of tips. All were checked and discarded except one.

Two Zanesville women—Mrs. R. A. Earick and Mrs. Edward J. Hiehle, said they saw the girl with a youth, hitch-hiking in front of their apartment the day she was reported missing.

Mrs. Baumgardner listened to their description and said: "There were certain things in the description that made it impossible for the girl to be anyone else."

The trail—if it was a trail—ended there.

Members of the Women's Missionary society of the United Presbyterian church will meet Wednesday at the home of Mrs. George Knofflock, 355 Springmill street. Mrs. Bertha Newcomer will serve as associate hostess.

Colony Club Has Dessert-Bridge

Two new members, Mrs. J. W. Stonebraker of Canton and Mrs. Paul James of Evansville, Ind., were welcomed to the Colony club, newcomers' organization, at their regular meeting Thursday. A dessert-bridge was enjoyed in the afternoon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with Mrs. Frank Bunsey as hostess. Twenty-eight were present and when high scores were counted prizes were won by Mrs. Dean Dickerson and Mrs. J. A. McNeal.

Miss Helen Pease, of Cincinnati, was a guest in attendance. Plans were made for the next meeting to be held Aug. 28 at the Dickerson home, Chevy Chase road, at which time Mrs. Grandin Godley will give a book review on "A Yankee Doctor in Paradise," by Lambert.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Of course you can look slim and young—despite the evidence of scales or tape measure—if you wear the right clothes! Though it's proportioned for the larger figure, it completely avoids a matronly appearance. The bodice fullness is kept under control by gathers below the spirited pointed yokes and above the slashes that are placed high at either side-front. You'll like those two smart front skirt panels . . . the belt with its front bow-trim . . . and the dressy gathering of the three-quarter sleeves. Add buttons and perhaps ric-rac edging for sprightly finishing.

Pattern 9781 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Aug. 16.

The auspicious astral vibrations are found to greatly stimulate the intellectual, creative and emotional energies on this day, and probably with culminations of their keen and forceful expression inciting to some sort of public acclaim, or the support of group, community or fraternal organizations devoted to humanitarian, cultural or social welfare. Such fine talents should be expanded or exploited for collective good, but with an eye to small treacheries or intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which their fine mental and spiritual forces may find avenue of expression and service in connection with conspicuous public works. Groups, communily or fraternal bodies may be ready to assist such aspiration to find place in humanitarian, charitable or social employments. But be alert to petty deceits or treacheries, provoking and resented. Let the higher nature prevail.

A child born on this day will have talents of a high order, quick, keen, brilliant and probably uncommon, finding expression in some unique or dramatic form of public work or service.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I FLUSHED at Mary's comment as might a flustered school girl whose thoughts had been guessed. But with a tremendous effort I controlled my voice.

"I do not think you're a 'heel,' as you put it, at all, Mary," I said stoutly, wondering if I were speaking the exact truth. "But—"

"But you're all mixed up about which foot I'm standing on at the moment," she said, with a wry smile. "And I can't blame you. One minute I'm threatening to give up my career to save Noel humiliation; the next, I'm keeping his father from finding out the foul stuff Steve Redfield's pulled, because his role is necessary to the play and me. Now, will you be the best and wisest of aunts, as you always are, and let me try to explain just where I'm parking?"

"I have been waiting for just that," I said, "and I shall listen most attentively."

Admits She Was Acting.

"In the first place," she went on, and her own cheeks reddened as she spoke, "you know as well as I do that those heroics about giving up my career for Noel were just that—a bit of melodramatic stuff of which I'm mightily ashamed.

"Don't get me wrong," she said earnestly. "I meant every word of it when I said it. But I knew, almost as soon as you did, that it was a surface emotion, not something from deep down within me.

"But you've got to believe me about this thing," she went on, emphasizing each word, while her eyes looked steadily into mine. "If I really thought it was for Noel's best good, for me to throw up my career, I'd do it, just as I'd die to save his life."

Willing To Make Sacrifice

The "light that never was on sea or land," illumined her face, and made her eyes like the proverbial stars. There was no mistaking the sincerity of her feeling.

I was glad also for the qualifying phrase she had put into her articles of faith. The words "If it was for Noel's best good," proved that her common sense, and her keen appraisal of her husband, had not withered a way either.

Weakens Moral Fibre.

I always have believed in self-sacrifice, but I also believe that it is the most abused virtue of them all. Far to often, sacrifice on one person's part means the weakening of the moral fibre of the person for whom the sacrifice is made.

Of course I do not mean the sacrifices which are made for the helpless, the ailing, the little children and the aged. Those are obligatory upon us all. But where two people bound together in any association are of equal strength, the joys and the sorrows, the labor, the hardships — and the sacrifices—should be shared by both.

My intuition told me that in another second or two she would explain her qualifying words, but, perversely enough, while I mentally applauded her common sense, some thing deep within me made me lean over and kiss her tenderly, before she should descend to earth again.

She returned my kiss and gave me an ecstatic hug.

"Now I know I'm forgiven," she said, "and I know you understand, you blessed woman; but I'm going on explaining, nevertheless."

"I'm still listening," I told her, smiling, and she went on.

"I think you know as well as I do that my giving up my career wouldn't do Noel a bit of good," she said.

"Instead, Mary," I said judicially, "from my observation of Noel's temperament, it would be the worst possible thing which could happen to him."

"That will bolster me when I get down in the mouth about all this," she said. "But you can bet on two things. First, I'm going to stop that 'Mary Veritzen's husband' business, and second, Steve Redfield's days with the play are numbered."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PERCENTAGES MIGHTY

Yes, indeed, there are players who think they are so extremely intelligent that they can run counter to the law of averages. "I never play the percentages," some of these are wont to say, "I just use good old common sense." Which raises a question. Is it common sense to refrain from learning the percentages for and against a few of the simpler and more important combinations of the cards on which many contracts depend?

	♠ A 9 8 4 ♥ Q ♦ J 10 8 6 2 ♣ K 4 3
♠ J 5 3 2 ♥ J 10 4 2 ♦ 9 7 ♣ Q 9 6	W. N. E. S.	♠ 7 6 ♥ 9 8 6 5 3 ♦ K Q 5 ♣ 8 7 2
	♠ K Q 10 ♥ A K 7 ♦ 4 3 ♣ A J 10 5

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5 ♦
Pass	5 NT	Pass	6 ♦
Pass	6 NT

This same contract was played at two tables of a duplicate. One of the declarers got a lucky lead of the spade 2, the 10 winning. He followed with the spake K and Q, then decided that, with ten tricks sure—four in spades, three in hearts, one in diamonds and two in clubs—he would seek the extra two in clubs, if the finesse would work and the suit break evenly. Both of these had to happen. He led the club K and finessed the J to the Q, so was beaten. After running his set-up tricks, he had to drop the setting diamond trick. The other declarer saw a sounder way, even though he did not get the lucky spade lead. West led the heart 2 to the Q. After considerable study, the declarer saw that, if East had either the diamond K or Q, he had almost a 3 to 1 chance to make it. So he led the diamond J. East covered with the Q, and the A won. A diamond back to the 9 and 10 gave East a trick with his K. No matter what East returned, South now could count three tricks in spades, three in hearts, four in diamonds and two in clubs

The odds favoring the successful declarer were nearly 3 to 1. Those against the unsound one were approximately 3 to 1, one-ninth as hopeful.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 6 4 3 ♥ K 10 ♦ 6 5 2 ♣ K Q 10 3 2
♠ 10 9 8 2 ♥ Q 4 3 ♦ 10 9 4 ♣ J 8 6	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q J 7 5 ♥ 8 5 ♦ A Q J 3 ♣ 7 5 4
	♠ A K ♥ A J 9 7 6 2 ♦ K 8 7 ♣ A 9

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

After West leads the spade 2 against your contract of 6-Hearts in the South, how would you play the trump suit if you were trying to protect what you thought was a fairly good lead, and how if you thought you were behind and were trying to catch up?

Braves Open Crucial Three-Game Series With Fremont

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

For consistency in golf you may doff the old chapeau to a guy named Joe.

Yes sir, the Mayer that's known as Joe has reduced the Possum Run course to a par 35 on both the inside and outside nines.

For 13 News-Journal A league matches Mayer has an aggregate score just 13 under par.

For all the rest of us the standard par 36 is tough enough.

And when I get 36 strokes, I go ahead and play the next hole.

One feminine fan nearly fell off her chair when she heard the score of that 26 to 3 Lima victory over the Mansfield Braves the other evening.

"Ouch," she gasped, "it's a good thing they don't do that very often, or we'd give those Braves back to the Indians."

Yes, she meant the Cleveland Indians, but a Cleveland team that gives Detroit 11 runs in one inning doesn't need any help from our Braves.

The Braves were just as pleased as anybody when that hard ball-soft ball freak game with Westinghouse was called off.

"But," says Skipper Alex Clowson, "I was getting all ready to pitch that game. I should have been good after a rest of a month and a half since hurling that July 4th game at Galion."

And then comes out a funny story that the boys have been saving since the Glorious Fourth.

* * *

"I named Jim Coleman manager for that Galion game, just for the heck of it," says Clowson. "Every now and then Jim would amble out to the mound and ask: "'Are you getting nervous? Just calm down, we'll get 'em out all right. And we've got a relief pitcher warming up in case you can't go!'

* * *

"I looked out in the bullpen," continues Clowson, "and there was our bat boy, Don May, limbering up his arm."

* * *

Coleman and Clowson got into it again the other evening at Tiffin when Jim and Lee Stuckman of the Hens umpired on bases.

"Any squawks out of you, Clowson, and I'll fine you five dollars and get you suspended," Coleman threatened.

"Any fines out of you, Coleman, and I'll fine you double," retorted Clowson. "And you won't be suspended. I'll make you work it out."

Phil Renie writes from Madison, Wis., that he recently saw the Madison Blues and Cedar Rapids, Ia., play a Three-I league game which Cedar Rapids won easily.

He had a long talk with Cedar Rapids slugger Hank Edwards, former Mansfield Brave, before the game, Renie reports, and he passes along the info that Hank is currently leading the Three-I league with a batting mark of .365.

Edwards told him he was to report to Cleveland after the Three-I season, and that he would go south with the Indians next spring.

Lutheran Club Win Independent Game

The First Lutheran softball club defeated St. Johns in an independent tilt at Prospect park last night.

The Lutherans hammered H. Uhlich for 10 hits making good for a tally on each bingle. St. John's batsmen connected for nine hits but were able to bunch them for scores only in the seventh and eighth.

Edwards sparked the winning club at bat. Goss, Floro and G. Uhlich led St. John's stick welders

Indians Hunting Punch

Peck Calls Trosky From Vacation.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Indians summoned Hal Trosky from his Cleveland "vacation" today in an effort to add some punch to their attack.

The big first baseman was left behind on the current western trip because of headaches, but observers informed Manager Roger Peckinpaugh that Hal has been feeling better and blasting the ball hard all week in hitting drills at League park.

Peckinpaugh did not disclose whether Trosky would replace Oscar Grimes in tonight's tussle with the White Sox or be held for pinch-hitting duties.

Southpaw Al Milnar was named to pitch for the Tribe, with Buck Ross the Chicago nominee.

The Indians entered the three-game series with Jimmy Dykes' boys a game and a half ahead of Boston in the battle for second place. Chicago, in fourth place, is three back of Cleveland.

The standings failed to change yesterday as the Tribe went 10 innings to a 3 to 3 tie with St. Louis and Boston split a double-header with Philadelphia.

The Yankees are still alive and blasting. They took advantage of the recent diversion of most fans' attention to rest and relax. In the stretch from Aug. 3 to 13, inclusive, they lost eight games and won seven. Even with this inept play, they extended their first-place margin from 12½ to 14½ games.

* * *

Yesterday the Yankees settled down to duty again and walloped the Washington Senators in a doubleheader, 7-0 and 10-3, to add another full game to their lead.

The Cleveland Indians, meanwhile, battled 10 innings to a 3-3 tie with the last-place St. Louis Browns. The game was delayed an hour and 20 minutes in the middle by rain and Bob Feller was called in to work after the storm, but even his presence couldn't bring victory.

The third-place Boston Red Sox divided a batting practice double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics. The two teams totalled 62 hits, including six home runs, two triples and 10 doubles, off 11 pitchers.

Jimmie Foxx returned to action and won the first contest for Boston, 11-8, with a three-run homer in the 11th inning. Foxx also homered in the second tilt and Bobby Doerr connected for two, but the A's won anyway, 10-8.

* * *

The Chicago White Sox swept their doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers, 3-1 and 3-0.

Only two games were played in the National league.

The Chicago Cubs sent the Pittsburgh Pirates staggering to their fourth straight defeat, 6-2. Fiddler Bill McGee finally broke into the win column as New York beat the Boston Braves, 4-3.

Bob Spear Wins 3rd Net Title

Teams With Ann Arron For Doubles Crown.

BOB SPEAR, No. 1 man from old Depauw, has spread-eagled the field and made a three-point landing among the trophy pile in The News-Journal City tennis tournament. A high-flying man with a tennis bat is Racqueteering Robert.

* * *

Paired with Ann Arron yesterday he turned in his third championship of the tourney, taking the mixed doubles crown from his men's championship doubles partner, Bob Enos, and the women's singles champion, Lois Shuey Weingartner, in three sets at Johns park.

The Spear-Arran combination had no walkaway in defeating the Enos-Weingartner team. Far from it. After gaining a 5-1 lead in the first set, they saw Enos and Mrs. Weingartner rally to bring the set to deuce and finally win at 9-7.

Spear and Miss Arron evened it up in the second set in handy fashion, and started out to capture the third set at love, getting a 4-0 start.

But once more Enos and Mrs. Weingartner rallied to bring the set to deuce. With darkness coming on rapidly, the new champions turned on the steam to take the next two games and a 7-5 set score.

Besides his two doubles titles, Spear rules the roost as men's singles champion in the highly successful tournament just completed.

Entry list for the tourney was not large, but players who participated agree it could not have been greatly increased from the present crop of racquet swingers in Mansfield.

Improvement of public park courts and development of young players was pointed out as the urgent need for present stimulation of the net game, particularly since some of the younger group now participating in the men's divisions face the prospect of being in the army before another season, even as last year's champion and several other 1940 swingers have been called to the army.

Provident Loans Win at Howard

Mansfield's twice state champion Provident Loan girls softball team was forced into an extra inning last night to edge out the Columbus Wilks Meats 7 to 6 under the lights at Howard, O.

* * *

Fran Knapp and Marguerite Everts of Elyria, who hurled the Providents to their three state tournament victories at Youngstown divided the mound chores.

Jean Herrick and Margaret Tipul clouted doubles and Weaver, the catcher borrowed from Elyria, smacked out a home run for the champions.

Sunday at 2:30 the Providents meet the Painesville Hi-Speeds at Johns park.

Crippled Mansfielder Defeat Lima Pandas

Jim Coleman Gives Only Four Scattered Hits In Victory

CHANCES of Mansfield's crippled Braves for the second half championship of the Ohio State league hang the balance in the series tonight and tomorrow night with Chappie Geygan's league-leading Fremont Green Sox.

Trailing by five and a half games, the Braves meet the Sox in a doubleheader tonight at Fremont, and in a single game Saturday night at the Fairground.

By winning two out of the three games from the Sox the Braves can remain definitely in the running, but it may be too much to ask of them in their present crippled condition. Last night they had only 10 men available for duty.

Harry Siegbert, first baseman, was called home yesterday by the death of his father, who suffered a stroke the day before. Catcher Tim Mangan was out of action with an injury suffered at Lima the night before when he was bowled over at the plate by a base runner.

Pitcher Pat Patterson is home with a sore arm, Catcher Eddie Mutryn is nursing a broken finger at his home in Cleveland, and Third Baseman Graf Moore long has been counted out for the rest of the season with an injured knee.

In spite of all this hard luck, the Braves bounced back from the 26 to 3 defeat of the night before to take a 6 to 3 decision over the Lima Pandas last night at the Fairground.

Staging rallies of two runs each in the sixth, seventh and eighth frames, the Braves came from behind to save a well pitched game for Iron Man Jim Coleman, who held the Pandas to four scattered hits, one of the questionable variety, and who permitted not one earned run.

Twice "Mother" Hubbard, Lima third baseman, drew a life on an error leading off, and got around for the first two of the Pandas' unearned tallies, while Johnny Cindric got a lucky double in the eighth when Bill Salem misjudged his fly to right center, and scored on a passed ball.

The Braves tied the score at 2 to 2 in the sixth. Bill Reink drew a walk and was forced by Bobby TeStruth. Then Bill Salem and Skipper Alex Clowson tripled to deep center and two runs were in. Clowson was out at the plate trying to stretch his hit to a homer.

And the Braves won the game with two more runs in the seventh when Bob Kuzava doubled, J. Coleman singled and Bob Ankrum doubled in succession.

Relief Hurler "Bugger" Snoddy issued three straight passes to the Braves in the eighth, and Ankrum's second double drove in two more runs.

New Bowling Plans Given

Manager Arrives To Speed Remodeling.

Al Vogel, former Shelby resident, who has lived in Chicago the past five years, arrived here yesterday to take over his new duties as manager of the Meder Recreation bowling alleys recently purchased by a group of Cleveland men, and which will be known as the Colony Bowling Alleys.

Names appearing on the incorporation papers of the new ownership of the alleys were the Cleveland law partners Jerry Friedlander and Alfred A. Benesch, head of the Cleveland board of education, and Sam Stecker.

Vogel announced that remodeling and redecorating work at the alleys, which has been carried on all summer by the Meders, should be completed by the end of this month and a grand opening of the new alleys is planned.

He expressed the hope that bowling leagues now organized in Mansfield may be increased and enlarged, and said a special effort will be made toward the development of women's bowling as an afternoon feature.

High school classes for boys and girls started last year will be continued, he announced.

With the exception of special matches, there will be open bowling on the alleys on Saturdays and Sundays, he said.

Marksmen Open At Vandalia Shoot

VANDALIA — (AP) — Shotguns boomed on a quarter-mile front today as the best clay marksmen on the continent started blazing away for $50,000 in cash in the 42nd grand American trapshoot.

From every state in the union, Mexico, the Caanl Zone, Hawaii and Canada, scattergun artists trickled in for the big event, the No. 1 attraction in the clay target sport. About 1,000 were expected to face the traps before the big barrage winds up next Friday.

Approximately 800,000 clay targets will be thrown during the eight-day bombardment, which means that the marksmen firing the same number of shotgun shells, will spray more than 26 tons of leaden pellets into the area in front of the traps.

* * *

Topping the program is the Grand American handicap, grand finale of the shoot scheduled for Aug. 22, in which close to 1,000 dent tilt at Prospect park last from distances varying from 16 to 25 yards depending on their known ability and their averages on registered targets for the season.

Youths Lead In Qualifier

Top Small Field In Amateur Tryouts.

(By Associated Press)

Two youthful golfers today topped a field of seven qualifying in Ohio for the national amateur tournament in Omaha, Neb., Aug. 25-30.

* * *

Harold Paddock, jr., 20-year-old Clevelander, shot even par 144 to finish ahead in the Northern Ohio test at Cleveland and Billy Gilbert of Cincinnati posted a nine-over-par 149 to lead the Cincinnati district contingent.

* * *

Gilbert was Big Ten championship while at Ohio State in 1940 and Paddock is captain of the University of California team. Both will be making their first trip to the national classic.

Ill with a sore throat, Gilbert got out of bed to outdistance a field of 18. Paddock's three-under-par 69 on the second 18 was too much for nine others in the Cleveland test.

Other qualifiers were Tommy Earls and Jack Wood of Cincinnati, Lloyd Ramsey of Lexington, Ky., Oliver M. Transue of Cleveland and Daniel A. Carmichael, jr., of Columbus. All these have competed in previous national amateurs except Ramsey.

Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati is automatically eligible through being a former champion. Another Ohioan, Henry Pabian of Steubenville, qualified in Pittsburgh with 76-82—158.

EXPECT APPOINTMENT OF JONES SUCCESSOR

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The University of Southern California shortly will name a successor to the late head football coach, Howard Jones, and the feeling remains general that Justin M. (Sam) Barry, for many years Jones' righthand aide, will get the position.

Dr. Rufus B. Von KleinSmid, president of the university, has returned from a business trip in the east and is expected to announce the appointment.

APPOINTED INSTRUCTOR

DELAWARE — (INS) — Bob Strimer, former coach and dean of boys at the Parkersburg, W. Va., high school, today was appointed instructor in athletics in charge of freshmen sports at Ohio Wesleyan university, effective Sept. 1.

SIGNED AS COACH

POWHATAN —(INS)— Bill Dorsey, former Manhattan end who piloted Powhatan high's eleven through a perfect season last fall, announced today that he had accepted a bid as football coach at the Ridgefield Park, N. J. high school.

MILD ADVANCE EXTENDED BY FEW SPECIALS

Most Leaders Remain Quiet; Chrysler Reports Net Profit Drop-Off.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—A few rails and aircrafts today extended yesterday's mild stock market advance by fractions but many leaders were at a standstill.

Early support was accorded Pennsylvania, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Kennecott, and American Telephone.

A trifle backward were General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, DuPont and International Harvester.

Scant market cheer was derived form the Chrysler half-year statement issued after Thursday's close. The company reported net per share dropped from $7.01 in the 1940 period to $4.82 despite the fact sales for the six months established a new peak.

The recession was accounted for partly by the elimination this year of operating results of foreign subsidiaries which were previously included, and mounting taxes and expenses.

Some encouragement was found in the Dun Bradstreet survey estimating one of the sharpest jumps in retail spending this week on record.

CALLS FOR MORE AID AND FASTER

Beaverbrook, In Washington, Expected To Confer With Knudsen, OPM Chief.

no tanks." He also said that the need for bombers had increased as the Royal Air Force had stepped up its aerial offensive against the German-held portions of the continent.

Asked whether he believed United States entry into the war was necessary to insure victory, he replied:

"You make that decision yourself."

He turned aside all questions about the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting by repeating: "I'm only the supply minister."

Beaverbrook stressed the importance of continued food shipments, which he said had been of great assistance. He placed bacon, beef, and cheese high on the list of food needs.

His talks here and the new blueprint of British requirements which he will lay before American officials were believed in certain administration quarters to presage an upward revision in the lend-lease program beyond anything now contemplated and possibly a reorganization of defense production agencies.
